Art

Exhibition Reveals Potency of Memories

An exhibition at FSU's Stephanie Ann Roper Gallery will take a closer look at how the passage of time and images from dreams shape memory and imagination. Featuring a colorful mix of paintings, collages and other works by four distinct artists, "Instigators of Memory" will be on view Sept. 1-27 at the gallery, with a free, public reception from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 1.

Gail Watkins, an artist based in Annapolis, Md., creates richly collaged abstract paintings that play with perceptions of time by fusing the Pop art aesthetic of American comic strips with ancient motifs and antiqued surfaces. Combining repeated patterns often borrowed from ancient Greek vases and other artifacts with photocopies of modern-day comic strips, Watkins builds up her surface using layers of paper, then tears it down and encloses it in a mix of paint and glue that creates a timeworn look. The comic strip imagery, something that is part of everyday popular culture, pictures that millions of people look at in their daily rituals of reading newspapers, suddenly appears ancient and archaic, worn down from the passage of time. Bringing a lifelong interest in both Near Eastern and Roman archaeology into her painting, Watkins reframes fragmentation, decay, discovery and wonder as metaphors for seeing. "In the cycle of history, the new is repeated from the old," Watkins said. "It is this natural process of formation and dissolution that interests me and is evident in my work."

Like Watkins and her use of comic strips, Connecticut-based Ann Weiner also relies on familiar imagery in her mixed-media artwork. Weiner uses antique dolls, emblems of childhood and innocence, to depict the progress of a spiritual journey. To Weiner, the doll represents intuition, or what she refers to as the "inner knowing" that a mother passes on to a daughter. Weiner embeds dolls and doll imagery in sculpted or painted surfaces marked by targets, spirals and other patterns. These markings represent the various forces that drive individual souls, through a labyrinth of errant destinies, to their own individual destinies. Weiner adds words, often fragments of poems, to illuminate these personal journeys, text she scribbles into encaustic or carves into steel. Holographic or lenticular imagery further enhances these intriguing maps that plot the timeless search for a spiritual self. In discussing her work, Weiner has noted, "My soul's story is spoken in this language of its own."

Elizabeth Austin, an artist who lives in Paris and New Hampshire, paints otherworldly landscapes on the reverse side of thick, plastic panels. Her recent works, "The Nocturnes," feature magical scenes of woods set at night in rich and densely layered reds, blues and greens that sparkle with metallic powders and collaged holographic foil. These dream-like visions of nature remind the viewer how the forest at night evokes an age-old sense of wonder.

experienced before, therefore making my work all that more vivid and memorable."

Marian Bingham, or Bing as she is professionally known, also infuses her paintings and photographs with familiar imagery that is timeless and unforgettable. Bing's "Dream Horse Series" focuses on horses, animals that are as present in ancient cave drawings and hieroglyphics as they are in Renaissance and Baroque paintings and modern artwork. Her works often depict faded moments of observation of horses taken from her childhood, when she often rode horses out in her home in California.

"The close association of the horse in the development of man—in the very earliest of art, in myths and literature, and as part of his dreams and literature—forms my connection with them," Bing said.

The Stephanie Ann Roper Gallery has free admission and is open to the public Sunday through Wednesday from 1 to 4 p.m. For information, call the Department of Visual Arts at x4797.

The all-campus program is free and open to the public. It is sponsored by United Campus Ministry.

Raesly has taught biology at FSU since 1989. Raesly received his B.S. in biology from Albright College, Master of Wildlife

"In my current work, I try to evoke images that will linger in a person's memory as a sort of feeling or even a dreamy location, if you will," Austin said. "I hope my images remind viewers of some place or circumstance that they have even

Theatre

CAST Brings 'Twelfth Night' to FSU Sept. 13

CAST, the Cambridge American Stage Tour will present "Twelfth Night" in the F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre on Wednesday, Sept. 13, at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $5 for students and $10 for the general public.

Since 1999, CAST, the Cambridge University American Stage Tour, has sent the brightest theatrical talent from Cambridge University, England, across the Atlantic to perform Shakespeare to audiences in the United States.

Directed and produced entirely by members of the student body, this year's offering is one of Shakespeare's greatest works, containing aspects typical of Elizabethan and Jacobean comedy: twins, mistaken identity, thwarted love, pranks and a punning clown. In "Twelfth Night" Shakespeare shows that life is, and must be, a mixture of both comedy and tragedy and that our role is to capture happiness and to hold onto it for as long as possible.

Entertainment

Cultural Events Series Offers Diverse Lineup

With everything from the best of Broadway and New Orleans jazz to puppetry arts and Ramona Quimby, the 2006-2007 FSU Cultural Events Series boasts a lively lineup of entertainment for all ages this year. FSU's two performance series, the CES Jazz Club sponsored by Kauffman Music and the Main Stage series, provide an opportunity to enjoy art, music and theater from throughout the world in the scenic setting of Western Maryland. With affordable admission prices and local, easy-access venues, FSU's Cultural Events Series makes it easy for performing arts fans to see top-quality shows without having to go the distance.

The Main Stage Series gets the season off to an explosive start with Neil Berg's "100 Years of Broadway" at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 21, in FSU's Performing Arts Center Pealer Recital Hall. This spectacular medley recreates some of the biggest moments from the best known Broadway musical shows of the century, including "The Phantom of the Opera," "Les Miserables" and "Jekyll and Hyde."

Supported by an all-star New York band, the show features revivals of Broadway classics as well as numbers from Broadway's newest hit shows being performed by the stars straight from Broadway.

In late September, don't miss FSU's first Appalachian Festival celebrating the artistic and musical traditions of Western Maryland's region! Activities include performances and workshops of old-time music, bluegrass, gospel, shape-note singing and more. Exhibitions and demonstrations of traditional arts such as rug-making, quilting, basketry, spinning, chair-caning, soap-making and folk medicinal practices run throughout the day Saturday, Sept. 23, in the Upper Quad area on campus. Local vendors will also offer regional foods ranging from buckwheat pancakes and maple syrup to sausage and sauerkraut. A special pancake breakfast prepared by the Frostburg Rotary Club will be held 7 a.m.-noon in the St. Michael Church Cafeteria.

The festival is capped off with an evening celebration performance featuring Liz Carroll, John Doyle, Dirk Powell and Bruce Molskey at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Performing Arts Center. Chicago-born Carroll won the Senior All-Ireland Fiddle Championship at age 18 and has been awarded a National Endowment for the Arts National Heritage Fellowship. Dublin-born Doyle is an accomplished musician whose work is heard on radio, television and film, as well as in concert. This daring and inventive duo will share the stage – and their musical roots – with two talented Appalachian musicians, Bruce Molsky, a fiddler, guitarist, banjoist and singer; and critically acclaimed banjoist and fiddler Dirk Powell.

Take Note

FSU Gains Middle States Reaccreditation

FSU's accreditation with the Middle States Commission on Higher Education was reaffirmed unconditionally in June.

Reaccreditation means that FSU continues to meet the eligibility requirements put in place by the Commission on Higher Education in its Characteristics of Excellence.

In addition, FSU was commended for the quality of its self-study report.

This reaffirmation is the culmination of an exhaustive two-year self-study process that involved nearly 90 faculty, staff members and students, as well as a visit from a Middle States evaluation team in April.

The evaluation team in particular noted that since the last time FSU's accreditation was reaffirmed in 1996, the University has evolved from a comprehensive college to a regional university.

As part of the self-study, a special emphasis was placed on the University's relationship with and commitment to its community, in particular its cultural, community service and economic development efforts.

That community outreach was one of the areas the evaluation team found commendable, in addition to the University's support systems for students, its innovative general education and online programs and its ability to enroll a diverse student body.

Student Groups Invited to Join Majors Fair

The Advising Center, in collaboration with SGA, the Provost's Office and the Colleges of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Education and Business, is sponsoring the 2006 Majors Fair in the Manicur Assembly Hall on Wednesday, Sept. 27, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The fair will be an opportunity for upper division students to create displays, share information about their majors and organizations with undeclared students, and compete for cash prizes and gifts. Student honors and interest groups attached to any academic department who have not already signed up and wish to participate should contact Elaine Barry in the Advising Center, 126 Hitchins, x3132, to sign up for an early September information session.

- One-on-one tutoring sessions are free to all students at any level.
- Tutors are trained to help students develop their skills over time rather than offer a "quick fix."
- Tutors can help students brainstorm, help them with high-order concerns like thesis, focus, organization, and development, or work with them at the sentence level as well as teach them how to proofread.
- Tutors can help students understand written assignments and/or professors' comments on returned papers.
- The pass rate for tutored students in composition courses in the fall of 2005 was higher across the board than for non-tutored students.

The resolution of the FSU logo copied from our Web site is not suitable for printed documents. High resolution versions of the FSU logo are available on the Campus U drive in a folder named "FSU Logos." The selections include several formats (tif, eps and jpeg) and both black and two-color versions.

Also, please do not use any creative renditions of the FSU logo, i.e., no homemade or student-created logos, no more "I don't have the font that's used in the logo but I like this one better anyway" substitutions. In addition, it is no longer appropriate to use the FSU centennial logo.

If you are unable to access the U drive or have any questions, e-mail cstump@frostburg.edu.

From Aug. 28 to 30, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day, the Beyond the Wall Poster Sale will offer a wide selection of art, prints and posters for sale. These are great items for decorating an apartment or residence hall room or giving as gifts. Look for them in Lane University Center 140-141.

Points of Pride

To date, more than $213,000 has been raised through the FSU Foundation Inc. for the Catherine R. Gira Campus to Community Fund, which will support student leadership programs, alumni connections, community service, internships and study abroad.

FSU's former president established the scholarship because of her belief that that student education is incomplete if it is limited only to classroom learning.

There were two primary fund-raising events. The first, in April, was held at the Hidden Waters home of the University System of Maryland Chancellor, Dr. William E. Kirwan. The second, held in May, was the Crystal Gala, sponsored by the Allegany County Chamber of Commerce and The Greater Cumberland Committee. More than 150 attended the Gala, and about 250 attended the Hidden Waters event.

The Gira Fund is designed to support students who demonstrate an entrepreneurial spirit, critical thinking skills and a determination to be successful. The activities it supports will nurture students who are prepared for the workplace in an increasingly competitive, global economy. Unlike many scholarships, the Gira Fund will assist students with expenses that often make these opportunities otherwise unattainable, such as transportation and housing.

The endowment is now large enough that annual awards are expected to exceed $8,000.

Counseling and Psychological Services at FSU has been reaccredited by the International Association of Counseling Services Inc., an Alexandria, Va.,-based organization of U.S., Canadian and Australian college counseling agencies.

FSU's Counseling Center was evaluated by IACS against high standards of counseling practice and was found to offer competent and reliable professional services to its clientele. IACS Approval is also dependent upon evidence of continuing professional development, as well as demonstration of excellence of counseling performance.

In true interdisciplinary fashion, Karen Starkey (a social work major) conducted a survey for a marketing course for her minor in business (using the research methods she learned in social work). The report has been accepted as a presentation in Honolulu for the Chinese Management Educators.

Sept. 1 Deadline for Student Fulbright

The Institute of International Education, in cooperation with the Dept. of State and the Fulbright Scholarship Board, are sponsoring the 2007-2008 Fulbright student competition. The program awards some 1,200 grants yearly and operates in over 140 countries. Students who will be graduating by

May 2007 and are U.S. citizens may apply online at www.fulbrightonline.org. Applications must be submitted both electronically and in hard copy by Sept. 1 to Dr. Amy C. Simes, FSU Fulbright advisor. She will assist with the process. Awards are generous and normally cover overseas costs for a year.

Study Abroad Programs

The Center for International Education offers a variety of ways for FSU students to see the world. In many cases, students register at FSU during a semester abroad and can take all financial aid with them and transfer credit back to FSU. For information on programs or scholarships, contact Dr. Amy Simes at the CIE in the Fuller House on Braddock Road, x3091, asimes@frostburg.edu or visit the CIE Web page at www.frostburg.edu/admin/cie.

Still Time to Apply for Ireland - Spring '07

Students who are interested in applying for the spring semester program at Mary Immaculate College in Limerick, Ireland, are advised immediately to contact either the CIE or Kate Keely (224 Fine Arts, x3209, kkeely@frostburg.edu). Keely will accompany the group next spring and teach three art classes. The program cost is comparable to the cost of attending FSU in-state. An information session will be held in early September (check this space!). Deadline to apply Sept. 29.

The Year of Study Abroad Continues

2006 has been designated by the U.S. Senate as the "Year of Study Abroad." In support, many study abroad affiliates, such as AustralLearn, Cultural Experiences Abroad and the American Institute for Foreign Study will grant financial assistance to students who are accepted for programs overseas. A number of organizations will also award additional scholarship funding to qualifying students as part of this celebration. For information, visit the CIE Web site.

Numerous Cultural Experiences Abroad

Cultural Experiences Abroad has programs in Buenos Aires, Argentina, as well as in Budapest, Hungary, and Prague, Czech Republic. They are also opening their second CEA Study Center in Barcelona. Also, in London they have added Goldsmiths University to their partner schools. For information, visit www.gowithcea.com or the CIE Web site.

Safety Message

You, Me, Pedestrians and Safe Driving

We should know how to drive safely from watching, listening, learning and acting while we are behind the wheel. Have we? Have you?

Do you give pedestrians the right of way? Do you slow down at marked intersections? Do you check your rear view mirror often? Do you avoid distractions?

Today we are the drivers behind the wheel. Tomorrow we may be the pedestrian waiting for the traffic to stop. We should be doing all these and more.
