University Theatre to Present Comedy Classic 'The Women'

University Theatre will present the play "The Women" by Clare Booth Luce on March 13, 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre.

A comedy classic, "The Women" premiered on Broadway in 1936, ran for two years and caused a sensation as it shattered cozy myths about matrimony. Described as "gleefully malicious," the play satirizes a group of '30s-era New York socialites, their twisted marriages and the delicious gossip that is their undoing. A large, all-female cast of characters provides some of American theatre's juiciest roles for women.

Tickets are $4 for FSU students and $10 for the general public. For reservations, call x7462 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

'The Women' Post Performance Dialogue

Thursday, March 13, has been set aside to have a dialogue between the cast and audience about issues raised in the play. This dialogue will take place immediately following the production in the Drama Theatre. "The Women" deals with issues around gender, race and class that are as relevant today as when the play was written. The play raises some fascinating questions, such as why "the women" of the play often seem unable to trust or support each other. Does the play merely echo stereotypes about women (e.g., they can sometimes appear as jealous shrews "cat-fighting" over men), or is Luce attempting to uncover the root causes of such behavior?

The FSU Campus Chapter of the National Coalition Building Institute (NCBI), the Diversity Center, and Women's Studies are sponsoring this discussion. For more information, contact Chuck Woodward, Director of NCBI and Training at x3151.

Stevens' application was accepted, and she will use the funds to support videotaping and photographing otters in the wild at specified sites throughout Pennsylvania.

Stevens, a 2002 graduate of the University of Maine with a degree in zoology, is a native of Marshfield, Vt.

Lamel Moore, an AmeriCorps member working with FSU's Center for Volunteerism and National Programs, recently performed a different sort of community service project in response to the nation's recent Orange Terror Alert.

On Feb. 14, Moore went to Fairfax, Va., as a member of the American Red Cross Western Potomac Chapter's Disaster Relief Team. His mission: to help with a call center established to provide emergency readiness information related to the Orange Alert. "We had a heavy call volume," Moore recalls. "You could hear the fear in people's voices. This was one of my top 10 learning experiences."

Reflexology Class

A Reflexology Class will be offered Mondays from March 31 to April 28 in the Cordts PE Center Room 113-1 from 6 to 9 p.m.

Reflexology is a safe and simple approach that promotes better health by reducing stress and tension. It is an effective alternative that can stimulate the body's natural ability to heal and resist disease. Every organ, gland and body part is represented on your feet and hands; these are called reflexes. By applying a unique finger- and thumb-walking technique to a specific area on the feet or hands, a given reflex is addressed. This stimulates the nerve endings and improves circulation via stimulation to the nervous system. Reflexology enhances total body relaxation, leading to the balancing of all internal and external body systems. Joan Stewart, certified reflexologist, will be instructing the class. Stewart received her Reflexology certification in 1995 and her massage certification in 2002.

Participants must register by Friday, March 21. Refunds will not be given after the start of the class. For information and registration contact Amy Nazelrod, Center Coordinator at x7934.
