The group's latest single, "This Love," is popular in current radio airplay and the song's video is regularly featured in VH1's Top 20 and MTV. Lately, "Maroon 5" was the musical guest on NBC TV's "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno" and "Saturday Night Live." They have performed over 200 live shows and have opened for artists such as John Mayer, Sheryl Crow, Jason Mraz and Counting Crows. Other appearances include "David Letterman,"

They played their first show at The Whisky in Los Angeles back in 1995.

Tickets are $17 for the general public. Local student discounts are available. Tickets are on sale in the Lane University Center. ### ALSO THIS WEEK Opera Theatre to Present 'Gianni Schicchi'

FSU's Opera Theatre will present the Puccini classic "Gianni Schicchi" on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 20 and 21, in the PAC Pealer Recital Hall. The performances, which are free and open to the public, start at 8 p.m. both evenings.

Set in Florence in 1299, "Gianni Schicchi" is a comedy about a wealthy family dealing with the aftermath of their patriarch's death. As greedy relatives set out to find the will and determine who is the rightful heir to the fortune, chaos ensues in this story of mistaken identity, backstabbing and star-crossed lovers. Director of FSU's Opera Workshop Corey Trahan likens the on-stage antics to "the sitcom 'Mama's Family' set to opera."

Stage director for the production is Richard Kagey. Karen Soderberg is conductor and Betty Jane Phillips is providing piano accompaniment. Kristina Driskill, of Dallas, Texas, will serve as guest artist, singing the lead mezzo-soprano role.

The Italian opera, which is 50 minutes, will be performed in English.

For more information, contact the FSU Department of Music at x4109.

University Theatre to Present 2 Ionesco Plays

University Theatre will present "The Bald Soprano" and "The Lesson," two absurdist one-act plays by Eugene Ionesco, on April 22, 23 and 24 at 8 p.m. Performances will take place in the F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre of the PAC.

A leader of absurdist theatre, Eugene Ionesco wrote his first play, "The Bald Soprano," while he taught himself English as a third language. Studying from the "Assimil Manual," he became intrigued by the banal and repetitive practice sentences, which ultimately influenced the dialogue of his characters. "The Bald Soprano" follows Mr. and Mrs. Smith as they discover "astonishing" truths about the world through a series of humorous conversations.

Labeled a "comic drama," "The Lesson" also investigates the ways language can be used for purposes other than substantive human communication.

Tickets are $5 for students and $10 for non-students. For reservations and information, call x7462, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Spring Festival of Children's Literature

The 2004 Spring Festival of Children's Literature will be held Friday, April 30, and Saturday, May 1, on the campus of FSU. In its 22nd year, the Festival features an impressive group of award-winning authors and illustrators including Susan Campbell Bartoletti, Denise Fleming, Brian Selznick and Douglas Wood.

Campbell Bartoletti is an author of both fiction and non-fiction books for children. She entered college as an art major but by her sophomore year realized that it wasn't her calling. She graduated with a teaching degree and taught eighth-grade English for 18 years. She published her first book in 1989 and her first picture book in 1992. She published other books while teaching and, in 1997, became a full-time writer. Some of her titles include "The Flag Maker," "The Christmas Promise," "Nobody's Nosier than a Cat" and "My Name is America: Finn Reardon."

Fleming is the author and illustrator of 11 books for children. Fleming is a native of Ohio, where she lives with her husband and daughter. A graduate of Kendall College of Art and Design in Grand Rapids, Michigan, she and her husband worked at a variety of art jobs before deciding to become free-lance artists. She creates her illustrations through pulp painting. "The whole process is wet, messy and wonderful — I haven't picked up a brush or a colored pencil since I discovered paper-making." Her work, "In The Small, Small Pond," published in 1994, is a Caldecott Honor Book.

Selznick is also a Caldecott-Honor winning illustrator and a New York Times best-selling author. His interest in art began as a child, but he didn't become interested in children's books until he began working for Eeyore's Books for Children in New York. His first book, "The Houdini Box," was published in 1991 while he was still working at Eeyore's. Selznick has illustrated books about famous people such as Eleanor Roosevelt and Marian Anderson. "When you draw someone's face over and over again, you begin to feel a bit like you know them." Selznick lives in Brooklyn.

Wood is an author, artist, musician, naturalist, and wilderness guide from Minnesota. His work has been heralded for taking his readers on a "journey of self-discovery." His books, considered inspirational, focus on themes of nature. They include "Old Turtle," "Grandad's Prayers of the Earth," "What Teacher's Can't Do," "A Quiet Place," as well as several books for adults.

Each year, approximately 350 librarians, educators, parents and students come to FSU to share their love of children's literature, and to learn more about successful ways to share that love with children. The Literature Festival provides an opportunity for its participants to interact first-hand with the featured authors and illustrators who bring characters to life and inspire children to read. Participants also mingle with fellow educators and exchange ideas and wisdom.

The agenda for the Festival includes large group presentations by the featured authors and illustrators, offered in a personal and relaxed environment, as well as informative small group sessions. Topics range from selecting quality children's books for a classroom to keeping social studies alive with historical fiction. An extensive book selection is available for purchase and autographing opportunities. The Festival was the brainchild of Dr. William Bingman, an FSU professor, who looked for a way to honor two colleagues, both of whom loved children's literature. The Festival has become a testament to those who enjoy and care about children's literature.

A special feature of the festival, The R. Margaret Hamilton Children's Hour, will be held on Friday, April 30, at 4 p.m. for children ages 4 to 13. Age specific workshops are presented by the authors, in which they share their work with children, as well as the process of writing and illustrating. Registration is required.

Admission to the Festival is by registration only and is limited in number. Pre-registration is required, and pre-orders are available for books that will be featured at the Festival.

To register or for more information, call the FSU Children's Literature Institute at x4420 or visit online at www.frostburg.edu/projects/clc/
