Martin Luther King Jr. Celebration to Honor Life, Works

In memory of the life and accomplishments of Martin Luther King Jr., FSU will hold its annual "MLK Celebration," an evening of musical and dramatic presentations celebrating freedom and equality. The event will be held on Tuesday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall.

The evening will feature performances by FSU faculty, staff and students. FSU students will perform a selection from "Joe Turner's Come and Gone" by the late playwright August Wilson. Both of these legendary civil rights activists passed away within the past year.

Musical selections for the evening will include performances by pianist Betty Jane Phillips, the FSU Chamber Choir and FSU's Unified Voices Under God's Dominion. A special multi-media educational display, featuring Dr. King and other leaders of the Civil Rights Movement, will be on exhibit in the Performing Arts Center lobby.

Theatre

UT Main Stage to Present Darkly Hilarious 'Quake'

University Theatre will present Melanie Mannich's "Quake" on April 20, 21 and 22 at 8 p.m. in the F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre of the Performing Arts Center.

"Quake" is a darkly hiliarious comedy, that follows a young woman named Lucy as she traverses the country in an idealistic search for the "perfect love." However, she soon becomes involved in a succession of surreal, contorted affairs that merely accentuate the mundane realities of human interaction. As events escalate into what one critic has called "a marathon of Twilight Zone episodes," Lucy begins to admire from afar the brilliance, power and control of a notorious female astro-physicist turned serial killer.

Alternatively labeled an abstract comedy, a picaresque fantasy, an episodic parable and a surreal gambit, "Quake" provides an unusual, entertaining, yet thought-provoking look at the many problems of human connection.

UT Kids’ Show: ‘Charlie & the Chocolate Factory’

FSU Theatre will present the children's theatre production "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory," based on the book by Roald Dahl and dramatized by Richard R. George, on Saturday, April 22, and Sunday, April 23, at 2 p.m. in the Drama Theatre of the FSU Performing Arts Center.

When five kids strike luck and find a golden ticket in their Wonka chocolate bars, the mysterious chocolate maker, Willy Wonka, invites them on a private tour of his factory to compete for a grand prize. This is a dream come true for the impoverished Charlie Bucket, the boy who found the first ticket. Young Charlie is accompanied by fellow ticket winners, gluttonous Augustus Gloop, the competitive Violet Beauregard, the wealthy Veruca Salt and bratty Mike Teavee. With the children placed in tempting situations and the singing and dancing of the Oompa-Loompas, Willy Wonka's tour becomes a sweet and sticky adventure sure to captivate all chocolate lovers.

Reservations are not needed. All tickets to "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" are $2 and can be purchased at the door on the day of the performance. For more information, please call the University Theatre Box Office at x7462.

UPC Presents 3rd Annual Battle of the Bands

The University Programming Council presents the Third Annual Battle of the Bands to be held in the Lane University Center's Manucur Assembly Hall on Saturday, April 22, at 7 p.m. A variety of local bands will compete for first place and a chance to perform at this year's Spring Fest on Saturday, April 29, on the campus of FSU. In its 24th year, the festival features an impressive array of award-winning authors and illustrators including Megan McDonald, Katie Davis, Carolyn Reeder and Javaka Steptoe.

Megan McDonald is a best-selling author of books for young readers. Working in museums, libraries, bookstores and even a park ranger gave McDonald a wide variety of experience to draw upon in her writing. She studied English as an undergraduate at Oberlin College before receiving her Masters in Library Science from the University of Pittsburgh. Her best known work includes the "Judy Moody" series, "The Great Pumpkin Switch," "Penguin and Little Blue" and "Stink: The Incredible Shrinking Kid."

Katie Davis is a graduate of Boston University whose own children inspire the stories she both writes and illustrates. Before becoming an award-winning author, Davis worked in public relations where she developed an awareness of her audience and the ability to speak the language of those her work is targeting. She has penned seven books for children including the now classic "Scared Stiff," as well as "I Hate to Go to Bed," "Kindergarten Rocks!" and "Who Hoots?"

Before becoming an award-winning author, Carolyn Reeder was first a mother and teacher. She was a passionate reader, but soon discovered that writing was just as pleasurable. Reeder is the author of many historical fiction novels set between 1861 and 1933. Her readers range from fourth grade to ninth grade, and her titles include "Shades of Gray," "Across the Lines," "Foster's War," "Before the Creek Ran Red," "Captain Kate" and "The Secret Project Notebook."

Javaka Steptoe has been drawing from a very early age and prefers to use pictures to tell his tales rather than just words. His first book, "In Daddy's Arms I Am Tall," won both the 1997 Reading Magic Award and the 1998 Coretta Scott King Illustrator Award. While his work is directed mainly toward children, people of all ages will appreciate his books' messages of unity and family pride. Others of Steptoe's include "Pocketful of Poems," "The Ones Family Express," "Do You Know What I'll Do?" and "Hot Day on Abbott Avenue."

The Festival of Children's Literature has grown over the years into a gathering of approximately 350 librarians, educators, parents and students who come together to celebrate the legacy of children's literature. The Festival provides an opportunity for participants to interact with the featured authors and illustrators whose words bring characters to life influencing young minds to read.

The Festival's agenda includes a large group presentation by the authors and illustrators, presented in a personal, relaxed environment and in a number of smaller, informative group sessions. TopICS range from selecting quality children's literature for the classroom to keeping social studies alive through historical fiction.

A special feature of the Festival, The R. Margaret Hamilton Children's Hour, will be held on Friday afternoon, April 28, beginning at 4:15 p.m. for children aged 4-13. Age-specific workshops will be presented by the authors during which they will share their work as well as the process of writing, illustrating and the enjoyment both can bring.

Admission to the Festival is by registration only and is limited in number. Pre-registration is required and pre-orders are available for the books that will be showcased at the Festival. For more information, contact Dr. William Bingman x4420.
