FSU Again Designated Voter Friendly Campus

FSU has once again been designated a Voter Friendly Campus by national nonpartisan organizations Fair Elections Center's Campus Vote Project and NASPA – Student Affairs Administrators in Higher Education, one of more than 231 designated schools in the country. FSU first received this recognition in 2017, following the 2016 presidential election.

The initiative held participating institutions accountable for planning and implementing practices that encourage their students to register and vote in 2020 elections and in the coming years.

The mission of the Voter Friendly Campus designation is to bolster efforts that help students overcome barriers to participating in the political process. FSU was evaluated based on a campus plan about how the University would register, educate and turn out student voters in 2020, how FSU facilitated voter engagement efforts on its campus and a final analysis of its efforts – all in the face of the upheaval caused by a global pandemic. The designation is valid through December 2022.

The success of these engagement efforts was evidenced by the increase in student turnout. Among the engagement efforts was a series of New York Times discussions and guest speakers, held virtually because of the pandemic, that engaged students in discussions about prominent issues. With TurboVote, an online tool, FSU also facilitated student voter registration. TurboVote was continuously available through FSU webpages and publicized through numerous campus venues.

FSU has made a strong statement about the civic mission of higher education to prepare students to be engaged participants in U.S. democracy and is excited to continue engaging students through 2021, 2022 and beyond.

Voter engagement initiatives are supported by Student and Community Involvement's Office of Civic Engagement and the Beall Institute for Public Affairs.

The institutions designated Voter Friendly Campuses represent a wide range of two-year, four-year, public, private, rural and urban campuses. Notably, the list of designated institutions includes many Minority Serving Institutions and Historically Black Colleges and Universities. The program is ultimately serving millions of students.

CES and Student Activities Present Nat Geo Live's 'Feats of Filmmaking'

Left, a scene from "The Rocky Mountains Traverse" directed by Bryan Smith and an aerial shot of Greenland by filmmaker and photographer Keith Ladzinski behind the scenes with two National Geographic filmmakers who are renowned for capturing extreme feats of adventure in remote and inhospitable environments.

Based out of British Columbia, Bryan Smith brings stories of adventure to the screen, from the South Pacific's deepest canyons to the frozen waters of Niagara Falls. Whether chasing tornadoes, hanging from massive natural arches or swimming with alligators, Keith Ladzinski takes on the seemingly impossible to document the endeavors of the world's most elite adventurers.

Upcoming programs include "Mysterious Seas" on Tuesday, March 30, and "Women and Migration" on Tuesday, April 13.

All events in this series require prior registration by visiting tickets.frostburg.edu. For info, contact ces@frostburg.edu.

Women's Studies Presents 'City of Joy'

To celebrate Women's History Month, Women's Studies will offer a free movie screening of "City of Joy" on Wednesday, March 24, at 7 p.m. "City of Joy" is a documentary about a leadership community for women who are survivors of gender violence in Bukavu, in the Eastern Democratic Republic of Congo that opened in 2011 and has since served more than 1,500 women. This is a place that turns "pain into power" and provides women with a space to heal and learn valuable skills. The film tells the story of the first class of women to graduate from the program, as well as the way that this amazing organization came to be.

There will be a discussion following the film. Note: The film may be disturbing to victims of sexual violence, and faculty will be on hand virtually to provide support.

Sean Black '20 graduated from FSU with a double major in engineering (materials engineering concentration) and physics (traditional physics track), along with a minor in math. He completed two capstones for each of the majors: "Exploring the Geometry of Spiral Galaxies" (physics) and "Solar Water Heater for Sustainable Energy and Environmental Application" (engineering). Black held seven internships (across five programs) in fields ranging from additive manufacturing to ship design to systems engineering. His last internship landed him a full-time job offer at the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory as a systems engineer, combat system analyst and artificial intelligence engineer.

Adam Bosley '15/M'16 graduated with a bachelor's in physics (engineering physics track) and a minor in sociology. His capstone was a collaboration with fellow panelist W. Michael Prohonic III under the mentorship of Dr. Jason Speights. They created a prototype apparatus for measuring microthermal variations as a proof of concept for classifying atmospheric seeing relative to the turbulent layer on a ground-based planar sheet. Bosley had multiple internship-like opportunities at FSU, including at the Physics of Solar and Wind Power Summer Center and sky-viewing seminars with Speights. While completing his master's, Bosley taught as an adjunct lecturer for PHYS 215 General Physics I. He is an engineer at Special Operations Solutions. He is also completing another master's in systems engineering from Cornell University.

W. Michael Prohonic III '16 is a graduate in engineering (electrical engineering concentration) and physics (engineering physics track). While at FSU, he was an engineering intern at Phoenix Technologies in Accident, Md., then a lab assistant at FSU in the Physics and Engineering Department. He collaborated with Bosley for his physics capstone. Prohonic also designed, tested and constructed a high-powered RF amplifier with Dr. Gregory Latta for his engineering capstone. Prohonic is a systems integration and test engineer on the E2-D Advanced Hawkeye program at Northrop Grumman in Saint Augustine, Fla. He recently finished his first class toward a master's in systems engineering at the Florida Institute of Technology.

Roper Gallery Presents Exhibition by Rachel Underwood, ‘Sleepwalking Toward Extinction’

Fire by Rachel Underwood

FSU’s Department of Visual Arts will present an exhibition by Rachel Underwood, titled “Sleepwalking Toward Extinction,” through Friday, March 26, at the Stephanie Ann Roper Gallery in FSU’s Fine Arts Building. This exhibition is free and open to the public.

The existential and conceptual problems posed by the current geological age are those at the heart of humanistic inquiry: what does it mean to be human, to live during this time? Underwood’s large-scale paintings explore moments of animalistic urges, death, adaption and the consequences of human actions. She often uses a life-size scale so the viewer can directly relate to and be confronted by the painting. Humans tend to primarily see themselves as apart from nature, rather than a part of it. Underwood examines the similarities and differences between the human animal and nature and what those relationships mean for the future.

Underwood is a U.S. Navy veteran. Currently, she paints about the climate crisis and is illustrating a children’s book about friendly dinosaurs. She earned her BFA from Towson University and her MFA at the University of South Florida. Underwood also plans to work toward a degree in environmental science.

For this exhibition, the Roper Gallery is open Monday through Friday from 1 to 5 p.m. For info, contact the Department of Visual Arts at 301-687-4797.

Points of Pride

Student Reeve Kennedy Presents at Maryland Collegiate Honors Council’s Conference

On Feb. 27, FSU student Reeve Kennedy presented his paper, “How Early American Poetry Relates to America Today,” for the Maryland Collegiate Honors Council’s annual conference via Zoom. This original research covers Phillis Wheatley’s “On Being Brought From Africa to America” (1773) and Emma Lazarus’s “The New Colossus” (1883). After explaining the criteria for what makes a literary work timeless, Kennedy analyzed the content of each short poem to make a case for its relevance to today’s young people, especially social activists. This year’s conference theme was Black Lives Matter. Not only does this presentation focus on the achievements of two women writers, but it also highlights a work by Phillis Wheatley, who is relatively unknown despite the fact that she is credited with starting the African American literary tradition in the U.S. This research was part of his fall coursework for Dr. Amy Armiento’s ENGL 261 Literature of the United States, Pre-Contact to Present.

Activities outlined in the nomination letter should have occurred in the fall 2020 and/or spring 2021 semester(s). The letter should consist of a narrative of no more than two pages in the form of an executive summary, plus any supporting documentation.

President’s Distinguished Staff Award

Nominations are also being sought for the President’s Distinguished Staff Award. Similar to the annual President’s Distinguished Faculty Award, this award recognizes and encourages FSU staff members who provide exceptional service to the University and who have helped to advance its mission, goals and priorities.

Regular exempt and nonexempt staff employees with at least three consecutive years of service to FSU are eligible to be nominated. Colleagues may nominate an eligible staff member with the knowledge and consent of the nominee. Contractual staff employees, faculty members and student workers are not eligible. Vice Presidents, deans and other senior leadership are excluded.

Nomination for the President's Distinguished Staff Award is to be made through a letter from FSU staff and/or faculty colleague(s). Multiple nominations for the same staff member are acceptable. Self-nominations and anonymous submissions will not be accepted.

Addressed to the president, a nomination letter should identify an eligible staff member and clearly document why their service is worthy of this award. Activities outlined in the nomination should have occurred during the 2020-2021 academic year. A nomination must be concise, summarizing the staff member's outstanding accomplishments and positive impact in one or two pages, plus any supporting materials not to exceed three additional pages.

This award aligns with the mission of our programs and FSU to support the oral communication competency and leadership development of our students, and it supports regional development through recognition of efforts linking the campus to community partners.

Do you know someone who fits this description, someone who is committed to changing the University, another organization or society for the better? Is that person you? Originally from Bedford, Pa., Shaffer returned to the area after earning her degrees and resides in Mineral County, W.Va.

Westendorff serves as executive director of the Allegany Arts Council. She joined the organization in 2018 after relocating from the Washington, D.C., area, with the specific intention to get involved in a small, rural community. Her career includes more than 15 years of corporate event planning and nonprofit management, as well as several years spent traveling with two lawmakers, when she was responsible for managing logistics around the globe. Westendorff is active in the community and serves on the boards of the Western Maryland Health System Auxiliary and Allegany County Chamber of Commerce.

Walsh is the executive director of The Greater Cumberland Committee. Following law school, she served as a law clerk for Justice Joseph Baca at the New Mexico Supreme Court in Santa Fe, then for Judge Hiram Puig-Lugo at the District of Columbia Superior Court in Washington, D.C. Walsh worked as a legislative assistant at the U.S. Senate for former U.S. Sen. Jeff Bingaman before moving to Cumberland. She has been practicing law in Cumberland since 2004 and practices part time in the areas of estate and long-term care planning at Geppert McMullen Paye & Getty. She is a fellow in the inaugural 2019-2020 Appalachian Leadership Institute Class.

Call for Presentations for Focus Frostburg

Focus Frostburg 2021: "Learn-In" for a Sustainable Future, a week of virtual learning, will be held this year Sunday, April 18, through Thursday, April 22. Depending on the pandemic, there will be a limited number of outdoor exhibits – with virtual presentations and discussions.

Focus Frostburg features programs, discussions and hands-on activities highlighting issues of sustainability and climate awareness. All presentations are open to the campus community and the larger, regional community. Student presentations would make a great class activity. Poster presentations are welcome. Hands-on activities, workshops and demonstrations are strongly encouraged; bear in mind that much of this will take place virtually this year.

To participate, email Dr. Kara Rogers Thomas at krogersthomas@frostburg.edu and submit a presentation/workshop title and one- or two-sentence abstract of your topic. If more time is needed, content can be carried over into a second session. In your response, indicate if there is a preferred time of day when you would like to present.

The deadline for submissions is Monday, March 15.

March 17 Non-instructional Day Part of March 15-19 'Staycation'

Although FSU's normal spring break will not occur due to travel, safety and health concerns related to the risk of spreading the coronavirus, Wednesday, March 17, will be a non-instructional day. This will support a portion of time for students to have a "mental health" break as part of a week of "staycation" programming Monday, March 15, through Friday, March 19. (Classes will be held as usual every day but March 17.)

The week will include events for students, faculty and staff. The position includes room and board. More applications are received each summer than there are positions (15 total), but all are welcome to apply. After an initial offer is made, the summer position is contingent on passing a criminal background check. The work varies, and the position requires someone who can think on their feet to solve problems. Hours are not regular.

An online application is available at <http://www.frostburg.edu/admin/confer/conferences-and-events-staff-application> and you can submit it there. For info, contact Tim Arnold, director of Conferences and Events, in Hitchins 322, at tparnold@frostburg.edu or at 301-687-4021. The deadline for applications is Friday, April 9.

Due to COVID-19, a final decision on a summer camps season for 2021 has not been determined, and an offer of employment only stands if summer camps are allowed.

70 Percent of Employees Say COVID-19 Has Made This the Most Stressful Time of Their Career, and 71 Percent of Students Indicate Increased Stress and Anxiety Due to the Pandemic

Tips for Managing Stress

Keep a journal for a week or two. In it, make note of the situations that you find most stressful, as well as the circumstances surrounding it.

Create work-life boundaries for yourself. For example, only check your work email during normal business hours or refrain from answering your phone during dinner.

Intentionally relaxing is a great tool for overcoming stress. Ways to do this include mindfulness, deep breathing and meditation. Practice this regularly so you can become better at it and then apply it to different situations and aspects of your life.

Use your vacation days and set aside time when you are able to focus your attention on something other than work.

Develop healthy strategies for handling work-related stress, such as reading, exercising, pursuing a hobby or listening to music. Additionally, get enough quality sleep.
