Music

Brass Ensemble Recital Coming Up Nov. 28

Concert to Feature Solo Performance by Music Majors and Special Appearance by Faculty Trio

The FSU Department of Music will present a concert by the Brass Ensemble on Wednesday, Nov. 28, at 7:30 p.m.

The recital will begin with solo works by two music majors. “Evelien” by Steven Verhelst will be performed by Arran Mills on the euphonium, and the first movement of “Sonata for Trumpet and Piano” by Kent Kennan will be performed by Dr. Joseph Yungen. “Evelien” was written for the funeral of musician Glenn Van Looy’s cousin, Evelien Van Looy. “Sonata for Trumpet and Piano” was influenced by German composer Paul Hindemith’s neoclassical style.

Next is “Pastorale for Trumpet, Bass Trombone and Piano” by Eric Ewazen, which will be played by the faculty trio of Dr. Deborah Caldwell on the trumpet, Clayton Heath on the bass trombone and Yungen on piano. Pastorale is an arrangement of the middle movement of an earlier work, “Ballade, Pastorale and Dance for Flute, Horn in F and Piano,” composed in 1992. The piece has a gentle impressionistic feel.

The Brass Ensemble, directed by Clayton Heath, will feature Nicole Kohl and Brice Simpson on trumpets, Hanna Livingston and Corey St. John on horns, Deandre Cook on the trombone, Mills and Casey Swartz on euphoniums and Maakeh Boayue on the tuba. The group will be accompanied by Yungen.

The ensemble will first perform “Galliard Battaglia” by Samuel Scheidt. The galliard, a vigorous court dance for two people popular during the 16th and early 17th centuries, consisted of fairly aggressive moves. In “Galliard Battaglia,” played in a lively tempo, the two trumpeters apparently represent the two sides of the battling parties as they echo and attempt to outdo each other.

“Die Bankelsangerlieder” is a 17th-century Baroque sonata that has recently been attributed to Daniel Speer. Translated from the German, “The Song of the Bench Singers” refers to performers who often played in taverns while standing on benches.
“Jesu, Joy of Man’s Desiring” is the most common English title of music derived from a chorale setting of the cantata, “Herz und Mund und Tat und Leben, BWV 147” (“Heart and Mouth and Deed and Life”), composed by Johann Sebastian Bach in 1723. One of Bach’s best-loved works, this piece is a favorite at weddings when the bridal party enters. This arrangement is by David Hickman.

“In modo religioso, Op. 38” was written for brass quartet in 1886 by Alexander Glazunov, a leading Russian composer and Romantic Classicist who has been compared to Brahms.

The ensemble will end with a piece from “The Planets,” a seven-movement orchestral suite by the English composer Gustav Holst. The concept of the work is astrological rather than astronomical: each movement is intended to convey ideas and emotions associated with the influence of the planets on the psyche. The “Jupiter” movement is well-known as the British hymn, “I Vow to Thee, My Country.” This arrangement is by Rolf Smedvig.

Pianist Dr. Joseph Yungen in Faculty Artist Series

The FSU Department of Music will present pianist Dr. Joseph Yungen in a Faculty Artist Series concert on Friday, Nov. 30, at 7:30 p.m. Yungen’s concert will begin with a piece by Gabriel Fauré, the “Nocturne No. 6 in D-flat Major, Op. 63.” “Nocturne” was written after the death of Fauré’s parents and after he wrote his famous “Requiem.” The piece opens with a calm and lovely theme, which invokes a melancholy mood. Tension is then built in its exposition before two more themes that are livelier, which gives a sense of conflict. The main theme returns, giving the audience a sense of calmness again. This remains as one of his most popular piano works and a masterpiece in piano literature.

The second piece, “Trois Grandes Etudes (Three Grand Etudes),” is a set of three piano etudes composed by Charles-Valentin Alkan in 1838 and published in 1869. The first etude, “Fantaisie,” is played with the left hand only. “Fantaisie” serves as a magical world of sounds, cadences and dreams. It features tremolos, which are a trembling affect, dense sequences of chords and large jumps. The first known performance was by Ferrucio Busoni in 1908.

The second etude, “Introductio, Variations et Finale,” is for the right hand only. This is the longest and hardest of the three etudes. It features frequent cadenza-like flourishes along with a lot of similarities to the technical challenges present in the first etude.

The opening movement, “Allegro,” is written in sonata form. The material in this piece is derived from the opening theme, which is shown in octaves in the left hand. The second movement, “Marche Funebre,” a funeral march, has a legato melody over staccato chords in the first section and a lyrical chorale in the middle. The third movement, “Menuet,” is full of energy and brightened by a lyrical trio. The final movement, “Finale,” is very technically demanding and referred to as a “ride in hell.”

The final piece is the “Nocturne, Op. 27, No. 1 in C flat Major, Op. 73” by Frederic Chopin in 1836 and published in 1837. This opening of this piece consists of switches between major and minor and uses arpeggios, which are chords broken into a sequence of notes, in the left hand. This piece gives a sense of serenity with a touch of moodiness and mystery. It builds up to a climax that feels like a revolt until it returns to its starting theme. This work is filled with tense moments.

Carmen Grimes to Present Senior Clarinet Recital

FSU student Carmen Grimes will present her senior clarinet recital on Saturday, Dec. 1, at 7:30 p.m. She will be accompanied by pianist Dr. Joseph Yungen.

Grimes will perform “Pastorale Cevenole” by Louis Cahuzaac; the first and third movements of “Sonata for Clarinet and Piano” by Paul Hindemith; “Un Soir” by Kalmen Opperman; and “Zart und mit Ausdruck,” “Lebhaft, leicht” and “Rasch und mit Feuer” from “Fantasiestucke in A, Op. 73” by Robert Schumann.

Senior Soprano Recital by Davani Cooper

FSU student Davani Cooper will present her senior soprano recital on Sunday, Dec. 2, at 3 p.m. She will be accompanied by pianist Dr. James DeWire and on one number by student guest artist Tyavia Jones.

Cooper’s program will include “When Love Is Kind” by Thomas Moore; “Lachen und Weinen” by Franz Schubert; “Where the Bee Sucks” by Thomas Ame; “Sull’aria ... Che soave zeffiretto” from “Le Nozze di Figaro” by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart; “Er ist’s” by Hugo Wolf; “Chanson D’amour” by Gabriel Fauré; “Star Vicino” by James P. Dunn, arranged by Arthur Schoep; “Noche Serena,” arranged by Edward Kilenyi; “Nuit D’étoiles” by Claude Debussy; “Music for a While” by Henry Purcell; “Ridente la Calma” by Mozart; “I Know That My Redeemer Liveth” from “Messiah” by George Frideric Handel; “Zartliche Liebe” by Ludwig van Beethoven; and “I Attempt From Love’s Sickness” by Purcell.

Jazz Orchestra and Vocal Jazz Ensemble Performing Evening of Jazz

FSU’s Department of Music will feature its Evening of Jazz on Tuesday, Dec. 4, at 7:30 p.m. The program will feature the FSU Jazz Orchestra as well as Vocal Jazz Ensemble.
The program will open with the FSU Jazz Orchestra, led by director Dr. Brent Weber, and will feature “In the Mood” as performed by the Glenn Miller Orchestra; “Intersecting Lines” by Les Hooper; “Hay Burner” by Count Basie; “The Way You Look Tonight” by Jerome Kern, arranged by Mike Tomaro; and “My Funny Valentine” as performed by the Sten Kenton Orchestra.

Under the direction of Scott Rieker and accompanied by pianist Dr. Joseph Yungen, the FSU Vocal Jazz Ensemble will perform “Spain” by Chick Corea; “Warm-Up” from “Mass” by Leonard Bernstein; “Raggy Waltz” by Dave Brubeck, arranged by Luigi Zaninelli; “I’m All Over It Now” by Jamie Cullum, arranged by Rieker; “Blackberry Winter” by Alec Wilder and Loonis McGlohon, arranged by Dave Cross; “Carol of the Bells,” arranged by Pentatonic; and “Angels Are Singing” by Michael McGlynn.

“In the Mood” is based on an old jazz riff that had been passed around for a few years in various forms. Miller, a gifted editor, was able to pare the tune down to its essentials. The famous introduction featuring the saxophones in unison, the catchy riff that anchors the tune and the suspense-building ending are all ingredients of the classic Miller sound.

“Intersecting Lines” is a very fresh-sounding piece with lots of counterpoint and counter rhythms.

“Hay Burner” starts out with a “hopping” two-beat feel, then goes to a four-beat feel. The spacing of the different sections allows each one to be heard separately and still come together to create a cool sound.

“The Way You Look Tonight” was introduced in the film “Swing Time,” when Fred Astaire (Lucky) sings it to Ginger Rogers (Penny).

The original Rodgers and Hart number, “My Funny Valentine,” was sung by a female lead, fondly listing the faults of the male lead. But deeper feelings are revealed when the rhythm kicks in.

“Spain,” an instrumental jazz fusion piece written by jazz pianist and composer Corea in 1971, is a jazz standard and likely his most recognized piece. The song appeared in its original rendition on the album “Light as a Feather.”

“Warm-Up” is from “Mass,” staged as a traditional Catholic Mass, with the main singer occupying the role of a Catholic priest. Yet over the course of the work, doubt creeps into the ritual, both musically and textually, and the structure of the Mass completely falls apart and disintegrates as the celebrant comes to terms with his own crumbling faith and moral emptiness.

“Raggy Waltz,” which debuted in 1961 on the album “Time Further Out,” isn’t exactly a waltz or a rag but a choppy piece with constantly shifting accents that don’t predictably fall where the listener expects.

Cullum has said that he wrote “I’m All Over It Now” as a short, snappy pop song in the style of ‘70s Elton John. It’s a break-up song about feeling heartbroken, then having that moment where the switch flips and you realize you’re fine.

Blackberry Winter is an American term used in the South and Midwest to describe a short, unexpected cold snap that can come in after the first few warm days of spring when blackberries are in bloom (and can refer to warm love having a cold snap). The American self-taught composer Wilder wrote about love lost in “Blackberry Winter,” one of his popular songs.

“Carol of the Bells” is a popular Christmas carol, written by Ukrainian composer Mykola Leontovych in 1914. Pentatonix covered the song on their album “PTXmas,” one of the bestselling Christmas albums of 2013.

Irish composer McGlynn has written vocal and instrumental music and is the founder of the popular Irish choral ensemble Anúna. “Angels Are Singing” is from his 2010 album “Christmas With Anúna.”

Admission is $10 for adults; $5 for seniors, members of the military and FSU faculty and staff; $3 for students; and free for children 12 and younger. Tickets are available at the door. Cash and credit cards are accepted.

Dates for Opera Theatre Changed to Dec. 5 and 10

FSU’s Opera Theatre will present “An Evening of Operetta” on Wednesday, Dec. 5, and Monday, Dec. 10, at 7:30 p.m.

English composer Sullivan is best known for 14 operatic collaborations with the dramatist W.S. Gilbert, including “H.M.S. Pinafore,” “The Pirates of Penzance” and “The Mikado.” His works include 24 operas, 11 major orchestral works, 10 choral works and oratorios, two ballets, incidental music to several plays and numerous church pieces, songs, and piano and chamber pieces. His hymns and songs include “Onward, Christian Soldiers” and “The Lost Chord.”

“Die Csárdásfürstin” is an operetta in three acts by Hungarian composer Kálmán. It premiered in Vienna at the Johann Strauss-Theater in 1915. Numerous film versions and recordings have been made. The operetta is beloved across Europe, particularly in Hungary, Austria, Germany and the former Soviet Union, where it was adapted into a popular film. It is arguably Kálmán’s most successful work.

“Le mariage aux lanternes,” a work in Offenbach’s more pastoral and sentimental style, was first performed at the Théâtre des Bouffes Parisiens in Paris in 1857. In this story, a young farmer, Guillot, has feelings for his orhan cousin Denise, who was entrusted to him by their uncle Mathurin. Guillot hides his feelings by treating her roughly, driving the young girl to despair. Both write to their uncle—he for money and she for advice. Each receives a letter about “treasure” that can be found under the great tree when the evening church bells peal.

Opera students include sopranos Rachel Cox and Alana James, mezzo-soprano Kayla Elsaesser and tenors Gabriel Harper and Christian Scott. Pianist Dr. Joseph Yungen will accompany the group.
FSU Named to Charter Excellence in Academic Advising Cohort

FSU has been selected to participate in the first-ever national Excellence in Academic Advising (EAA) comprehensive strategic planning process, a program created by NACADA, a global association dedicated to enhancing the educational development of students in higher education, and the nonprofit Gardner Institute.

EAA establishes aspirational standards for institutions to evaluate and improve academic advising and acknowledge the central role of advising in promoting student learning, success and completion.

In the first year, FSU will partner with an EAA fellow, who will guide the University through an institution-wide, evidence-based decision-making, planning and implementation process to improve its academic advising efforts. Using EAA’s nine “Conditions of Excellence in Academic Advising,” FSU will refine, validate and establish the standards or benchmarks to guide a reflective self-study and strategic assessment of academic advising.

“I am very pleased to see a diverse and dedicated group of students, faculty and staff ready to tackle the challenge of improving academic advising at FSU. As you may know from our self-study, advising was one area identified for our attention by the university community,” said FSU President Ronald Nowaczyk. “This collaboration with NACADA and the Gardner Institute is our once-in-a-generation chance to transform academic advising at FSU.”

The effort is being led by task force co-chairs Dr. Jay Hegeman, FSU registrar, and Dr. Ben Norris, chair of the faculty and an associate professor of chemistry.

FSU Student Kristin Ratliff Awarded Grant

Kristin Ratliff, a senior biology major, received a prestigious grant award of $600 from the national chapter of the Tri-Beta National Biological Honor Society to help her complete her independent study project. The national chapter funded, in part, her project that aims to create an edible vaccine for mice against Lyme disease, which is caused by the bacterium “Borrelia burgdorferi.” The project will use transgenic technology to insert the ospA gene from “B. burgdorferi” into the Arabidopsis plant. Seeds from the plant will then be fed to mice with the aim to make them immune to the bacterial species that is spread by ticks. By preventing mice from being infected with the bacterium, ticks will no longer be able to transmit it from mice to humans.

Make sure you come to the Undergraduate Research Symposium in the spring to see the progress of Ratliff’s project!

For info, contact Dr. David Puthoff at dpputhoff@frostburg.edu.
