“Frostburg State University isn’t just a place of employment where one collects a paycheck. FSU is also a place for faculty and staff to grow personally and professionally. The Employee Development and Leadership Series provided me with the opportunity to increase my leadership skills while building strong and lasting relationships with outstanding leaders in our campus community. Being part of this cohort has prepared and equipped me for challenges as a leader in my field. I encourage faculty and staff to seriously consider applying for this rewarding and valuable experience. ’A leader is one who knows the way, goes the way and shows the way.’ – John C. Maxwell”

— Victoria Gearhart, Center for International Education

“This series has allowed me to more deeply consider myself as a leader and how I work with my colleagues toward our shared goals. This work is something I had recognized I did not receive in my past experiences or preparation for my position. It’s also provided an opportunity for me to consider my role in relation to other departments and offices on campus and within the University structure. It’s been great to meet and get to know leaders in other areas of the University, and I can see that these connections will be important in the future as we work together to meet the shared goals of the University.”

— Dr. Jodi Welsch, Department of Educational Professions

“What has been the best part of the series is that it gives you the tools to help examine situations in new ways, which leads to solving problems and moving forward.”

— Dr. David Puthoff, Department of Biology

“The leadership series has been invaluable in helping me to develop my skills and think about how to apply them in my job here at FSU. It is a wonderful forum in which to share ideas with colleagues and gain perspectives on many areas of the University.”

— Linda Steele, College of Liberal Arts & Sciences

In 2014, the Office of Human Resources, in collaboration with the College of Business, established a development and leadership series for high-performing staff and faculty at Frostburg State University. This initiative is designed to provide up-and-coming leaders at the University with the knowledge and skills they need to be successful in their current roles and to prepare them for potential leadership roles in higher education. The series consists of eight workshops. Each day focuses on a different topic and outcomes that have been identified in collaboration with current campus leaders, based upon the Frostburg State University Leadership Competency Model. In addition, participants have the opportunity to learn about the divisions and structures of the University and the University System of Maryland through panel discussions and presentations provided by division leaders.

The Goals of the Series:
1. To enhance participant knowledge, skills and competencies in leadership while developing their ability to manage change
2. To improve supervisory skills, methods and practices
3. To increase the individual’s awareness of his/her supervisory style and develop/increase the ability to adapt to different styles of behavior
4. To raise awareness of conflict styles and effective approaches to conflict resolution
5. To build a fundamental understanding of current employment, labor laws and regulations that impact the workplace
6. To assist participants in developing the ability to manage an increasingly diverse workforce and assist in fostering an inclusive workplace environment characterized by fairness, understanding and mutual respect and civility

The Application Materials Must Include:
1. An application/nomination form (available online)
2. A letter of intent stating how participation in the series relates to the applicant’s individual career goals
3. A resume or CV

Frostburg’s Employee Development and Leadership Series represents a remarkable opportunity for any faculty or staff member. The series offered useful lessons and techniques from colleagues in the College of Business, insightful discussions with numerous University leaders and a chance to forge new relationships with motivated faculty and staff across campus. We left with broad Bobcat networks and the leadership tools necessary to take advantage of those new connections. In short, Frostburg’s Employee Development and Leadership Series is a unique and valuable step on the path to career success.”

— Robert Spahr, Communications and Media Relations

“The ability to learn more about my colleagues across campus has been invaluable. So often, we spend our time in our own departments with our own missions, that it is refreshing to get some additional perspective. I have loved my one day a month with this group!”

— Liz (Burlas) Nelson, University Advancement

“The application process is very easy. I think the application process is open to anyone who needs improvement in leadership skills. This course was very helpful and informative. I highly recommend this course to anyone who is interested in improving their leadership skills.”

— Tiffany Pirolozzi, Admissions
